this study focuses on the saucer pyres a series of 70 deposits excavated in the residential and industrial areas bordering the athenian agora each consisted of a shallow pit its floor sometimes marked by heavy burning with a votive deposit of pottery and fragments of burnt bone ash and charcoal most of the pots were miniatures including the eponymous saucers but a few larger vessels were found along with offerings associated with funerary cult the deposits represent a largely athenian phenomenon with few parallels elsewhere when first found in the 1930s the deposits were interpreted as baby burials recent zooarchaeological analysis of the bones however reveals that they are the remains of sheep and goats and that the deposits were sacrificial rather than funerary the present study investigates the nature of those sacrifices taking into account the contents of the pyres their spatial distribution and their relationship to buildings around the agora and elsewhere in light of a strong correlation between pyres and industrial activity the author argues that the pyres document workplace rituals designed to protect artisans and their enterprises
