Pierce and Newstrom's Leaders and the Leadership Process 4e is a collection of readings, self-assessments, case studies, and experiential exercises on leadership intended to give students a feel for the breadth and richness of this study. This paperback book provides students with a sense of the complexity associated with leadership in organizations as well as an understanding of the pieces that serve to define leadership. The text encourages students to engage in dialogue and to think critically about the leaders and the leadership process. Self-assessments which begin most chapters of the book encourage students to look at their own personal leadership style. A capstone section of applications in the form of case studies and experiential exercises asks students to move beyond theory to the practice of leadership. The authors use this combination of readings, self-assessments, and applications to create a leadership mosaic, one that encourages students to examine the concepts, propositions, perspectives, and theories one at a time as it builds towards the student's ultimate unique leadership mosaic.

Seminar paper from the year 2021 in the subject Business Economics, Business Management, Corporate Governance, Grade 1-3, AKAD University of Applied Sciences, Stuttgart, Language: English. Abstract: The aim of the assignment is to discuss the importance of leadership in the context of strategic management in order to achieve this goal, the term leader must be distinguished from manager as a modal goal. Furthermore, it needs to be clarified the relationship between strategic management and leadership to be able to achieve these goals. The theoretical foundations about leadership and strategic management must first be developed in the second and third chapter. This includes respectively the history and evolution and a definition of these terms. After the basic understanding was created, the role of leadership in strategic management will be discussed in the main unit. Chapter five provides a conclusion and a critical examination of the research findings. In many industries and sectors are currently undergoing a shift from evolutionary change to increasingly disruptive change. In this process, existing offerings and services are fundamentally called into question and in some cases even become obsolete. With this development, companies are forced to completely realign their business activities and thus face a complex challenge.

Understanding both leadership and change have been recurrent and popular themes within the business management and organization studies literature. However, our understanding of leadership and organizational change in combination is far more limited. The leadership of organizational change offers a critical review of the evolution of leadership and organizational change for the past thirty-five years, taking stock of what we know identifying what we do not know and establishing how the study of the leadership of change should advance in the late seventies and early eighties as interest in managing and leading change was fuelled by the competitive threat of asia in general and japan in particular as perceived by western businesses and governments burns 1978 writing in his landmark book leadership at this time referred to an intellectual crisis the crisis of leadership today is the mediocrity or irresponsibility of so many of the men and women in power but leadership rarely rises to the full need for it the fundamental crisis underlying mediocrity is intellectual if we know all too much about our leaders we know far too little about leadership while the study of managing change has benefitted from sustained critical scrutiny particularly in the last decade it is believed that this is to have been at the expense of critical scrutiny of leading change the leadership of organizational change critically reviews how the study of leading change has advanced since 1978 and the crisis of intellectual mediocrity
