cultural politics at the fin de siècle scrutinises ways in which current conflicts of race class and gender have their origins in the cultural politics of the last fin de siècle whose influence stretched from the 1890s when economic depression signalled the end of britain s role as the workshop of the world to 1914 when world war accelerated imperial decline this collaborative venture by new and established scholars includes discussion of the new woman the reconstruction of masculinities and of feminism and empire the imperialist theme is pursued in essays on yeats and ireland gilbert and sullivan and the figure of the vampire the rise of socialism and psychoanalysis and the relationship between nascent modernism and late twentieth century postmodernism are also addressed in this radical account cultural politics is an international refereed journal that explores the global character and effects of contemporary culture and politics it explores precisely what is cultural about politics and what is political about culture publishing across the arts humanities and social sciences the journal welcomes articles from different political positions cultural approaches and geographical locations cultural politics publishes work that analyses how cultural identities agencies and actors political issues and conflicts and global media are linked characterized examined and resolved in so doing the journal supports the innovative study of established embryonic marginalised or unexplored regions of cultural politics this book introduces central assumptions that govern postmodern and feminist theory offering educators a language to create new ways of conceiving pedagogy and its relationship to social cultural and intellectual life it challenges some of the major categories and practices that have dominated educational theory and practice in the united states and in other countries since the beginning of the twentieth century rejecting the apolitical nature of some postmodern discourses and the separatism characteristic of some versions of cultural feminism the contributors take a political stand rooted in concern with cultural and social justice in so doing these essays represent a linguistic shift regarding how we think about ethics foundationalism difference and culture the selections present a concern with developing a language that is critical of master narratives racism sexism and those technologies of power in schools that subjugate infantilize and oppress students the authors also develop a language of possibility that focuses on analyzing how power can be linked productively to knowledge how teachers can construct classroom social relations based on notions of equity and justice how critical pedagogy can contribute to an identity politics that is grounded in democratic relations and how teachers can develop analyses that enable students to become self reflective actors as they transform themselves and the conditions of their social existence this volume addresses these key issues through an analysis of important theoretical debates on issues such as digital democracy cultural politics and transnational communities featuring contributors from both sides of the atlantic the book contains a series of case studies on new social movements including campaigns on the environment gender animal rights and human rights it combines cutting edge research with theoretical material and makes an important contribution to this highly topical and rapidly growing area this book will be invaluable reading for students in areas including politics communications and it sociology and cultural studies following a first edition that generated wide spread debate cultural politics queer reading is a bold study of the future of critical theory and the role of gender ethnicity and cultures within academic literary studies an illuminating introduction to the second edition revisits the book s agenda for a new form of cultural critique and a truly political lesbian and gay studies sinfield renews his call for an englit that incorporates ongoing study of the cultures of ethnicity gender and sexuality challenging the assumptions that have shaped the study of english literature sinfield engages provocatively with topics such as the gendering of literary culture the sexual politics of psychoanalysis during the cold war and the history of cultural materialism he discusses such key figures as william shakespeare christopher marlowe walt whitman arthur miller holly hughes audre lorde and jeanette winterson this influential investigation of the principles and practice that may form dissident reading forms compelling argument for intellectual allegiances beyond the academy
