luka jantjie is today a largely forgotten hero of resistance to british colonialism his place in south african history has tended to be overshadowed by events elsewhere in the region this book attempts to redress the balance by recording his remarkable story in 1870 at the beginning of the kimberley diamond mining boom that was to transform southern africa luka jantjie was the first independent african ruler to lose his land to the new colonialists who promptly annexed the diamond fields his outspoken stand against the hypocrisy of colonial justice earned him the epithet a wild fellow who hates the english as the son of an early christian convert luka was brought up to respect peace and non violence his boycott of rural trading stores in the early 1890s was perhaps the earliest use of non violent resistance in colonial south africa his steady refusal to bow to colonial demands of subservience intensified the enmity of local colonists determined to teach him a lesson as many of his people succumbed to colonial pressures luka was twice forced to take up arms to defend himself and his people from colonial attacks his life ended in a dramatic and heroic last stand in the ancestral sanctuary of the langeberg mountain range its tragic consequences stretched far into the next century this book is a compendium of european businesses within the african continent conducted with good intentions positively motivated from the first time arabs and europeans set foot on african soil however it later became complicated and sour due to unfair gaming by one side greed and avarice on the other and negative compromises on both sides the original objective of this trade was to exchange goods for goods each side playing fairly and ultimately delivering the dividends of mutual business relationships when this transaction became intriguing it unfortunately got screwed up and turned into the buying and selling of humans as domestic servants and later into human cargoes meant for international shipment the west has tried in multiple ways many times to fix their past misdeeds however the measures applied idiosyncratically metamorphosed into the abolitionist nightmare of civil war colonization imperialism economic slavery segregation marginalization and brutalization of one people and one race all attempts to correct these evils of the past by subsequent generations have also proven very difficult due to a couple of reasons including unfairness and injustice because as the saying goes he who must come to equity must come with clean hands source unknown an injustice to one is an injustice to all and an injustice anywhere is an injustice everywhere martin luther king jr all the above were far from being the case and as such nothing seems to make those misgivings go away the issue at hand right now is that the injustice is so widespread that if left unchecked the aftermath will be worse than what the world is witnessing today from the effects of climate change migration tsunamis wars ethnic cleansing and habitat displacement from most ancestral homes this book suggests remedies that will prove to be better than what the governments of the world today are proffering as the solution to the apocalyptic problems of our time there should be a restructuring of lending practices and an overhauling of the world s monetary policies by better regulated agencies devoid of the lending malpractices of bodies like the world bank and the international monetary fund there should be an equitable redistribution of world collective wealth good enough to build structures that will be attractive enough to compel young people to stay and work in their ancestral homes countries of origin and earn a decent living wage in effect these restructurings will strengthen world bodies like the united nations un world trade organization wto unicef and the world food programme

Values include a set of principles, ideas, or beliefs that guide an individual and society in an endeavor to carry out defined objectives or national programs or purposes related to the attainment of political, social, and economic goals for the benefit of the people. As a result, values are very important to national leadership. This book focuses on pertinent political and social issues in Botswana, South Africa, and Tanzania during the leadership of Seretse Khama, Nelson Mandela, and Julius Nyerere, respectively. It is a critical analysis of the nature of good and effective national leadership in these three nations based upon the values that the leaders embraced to serve their respective countries. Drawing implications for other countries of the region, the author demonstrates what he considers to be good national leadership by providing insights into the political careers of Seretse Khama of Botswana, Nelson Mandela of South Africa, and Julius Nyerere of Tanzania. The values that these three national leaders shared in common and which made them successful include integrity, loyalty to principle, honesty, respect for democracy, confidence in the ability of the people to make a viable contribution to national policy and programs.
