during the nineteenth century and into the early twentieth century more europeans visited the middle east than ever before as tourists archaeologists pilgrims settler colonists and soldiers these visitors engaged with the arabic language to differing degrees while some were serious scholars of classical arabic in the orientalist mould many did not learn the language at all between these two extremes lies a neglected group of language learners who wanted to learn enough everyday colloquial arabic to get by the needs of these learners were met by popular language books which boasted that they could provide an easy route to fluency in a difficult language arabic dialogues explores the motivations of arabic learners and effectiveness of instructional materials principally in egypt and palestine by analysing a corpus of arabic phrasebooks published in nine languages english french german spanish portuguese italian yiddish hebrew russian and in the territory of twenty five modern countries beginning with napoleon s expédition d Égypte 1798 1801 it moves through the periods of mass tourism and european colonialism in the middle east concluding with the second world war the book also considers how arab intellectuals understood the project of teaching arabic to foreigners the remarkable history of arabic learning among yiddish and hebrew speaking immigrants in palestine and the networks of language learners teachers and plagiarists who produced these phrasebooks excerpt from manual of palestinean arabic for self instruction the present volume has grown out of a need which i have abundant reason to suppose that others as well as myself have experienced for some means of acquiring a knowledge of the arabic dialect spoken not only in jerusalem but with some slight variations in the whole of palestine to day such manuals as already exist in english are for the most part adapted for the egyptian arabic or for the libanese such as is spoken in beirut and in the north or for other special districts and may be misleading especially in nomenclature to such as have learnt no arabic whatever and confusing to those who like my self wheni came into this part of the country six years ago are students of the classical language only such manuals moreover contain many words which occur only in modern literary arabic and which as not belonging to the vernacular and not understood by the populace have in this volume been carefully excluded i have sought to adapt this work to the arabic student interested in the dialect as such as well as to those requiring the language for daily use in palestine also to the passing traveller seeking to make himself understood and to understand those about him in these days of multiplication of railways hotels and other conveniences of travel when the often obtrusive dragoman is happily becoming less of a necessity the demand for a practical phrase book is increasingly urgent the necessary limits of such a manual obviously preclude the possibility of presenting a grammar which is exhaustive even in regard to the vernacular it is how ever hoped that it may be found to include all that is necessary for such practical use as has been suggested about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
